COLD WAVE IS SWEEPING ON SOUTHLAND!

TEST ON VETO BY COOLIDGE HALTED IN SENATE

Sterling of South Dakota Saves Administration by Talk Against Time

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—A one-man filibuster in the Senate this afternoon saved the administration from meeting its first big legislative test of the present Congress on a vote to override President Coolidge's veto of the postal pay bill.

The filibuster was launched by Senator Thomas Sterling, Republican, of South Dakota, after the Senate voted 51 to 30 to consider the president's veto message. This vote was forced by Democratic senators who oppose the administration's plan to link to the pay bill a measure providing for a $68,000,000 increase in postal rates.

Votes to Consider

The administration was thrown unexpectedly into its first big legislative test since the November elections when Senator Sterling launched his one-man filibuster in the Senate to prevent a final vote on President Coolidge's veto of the postal salary bill.

The administration first suffered a minor defeat when the Senate voted 51 to 30 to consider the president's veto measure over the protest of Republican leaders. Sterling then began talking in an effort to forestall a final vote, which had to come before 2 o'clock under the Senate's agreement to consider only Muscle Shoals legislation after that hour.

Presents Measure

The new bill would raise $68,000,000 from higher postal rates to pay for the salary increases. It was lack of this revenue which caused President Coolidge to veto the salary bill last spring.

Immediately after Sterling made this move, Senator Ashurst, Democrat of Arizona, moved for the immediate consideration of the president's veto of the postal pay bill.

First Clash Occurs

A moment earlier Ashurst had blocked the "second reading" of Sterling's new bill and prevented it's being referred to the Senate postoffice committee.

In the first clash of the new postal rate war, the Senate voted 51 to 30 to immediately consider President Coolidge's veto of the postal salary increase bill.

The issue was provoked by Senator Sterling's action in sponsoring an omnibus measure which raised both salaries and poseal rates.

PRESIDENT IS NEUTRAL ON ARMAMENT

Insists U. S. Will Take No Part In Parley On War Forces

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—President Coolidge's determination that the United States shall not engage in any armament competition, irrespective of what other nations may do, was positively reaffirmed and emphasized at the White House today.

The president told callers that he could see little hope for the future, from the standpoint of world peace and economic well-being, if nations resume the business of armament racing, and, so far as the United States is concerned, Mr. Coolidge made it clear his administration will have none of it.

Every effort will be made by the administration forces in Congress toward keeping naval expenditures for the next fiscal year within the budget estimates of $290,000,000—despite the agitation by the general board and naval authorities generally for increased appropriations and new buildings to bring the navy up to a parity with Great Britain and Japan in the important factors of cruisers, aircraft and submarines.

The president made it clear to inquirers that he considered the budget makers knew their business in providing the present estimates and that they will insure an adequate national defense.

Gun Elevation

As for the proposed expenditure of $6,000,000 for elevation of guns on capital ships, Mr. Coolidge is inclined to doubt its wisdom, both from economical and practical standpoints. PAUL'S OPTIMISM IS SERMON TOPIC

Rev. W. E. Edmonds Outlines Benefits of Belief In Sunday Address

A large crowd of Optimists, though not all affiliated with the local organization, listened to a sermon on "Optimism," based on the eighth chapter of Romans, preached by Rev. W. E. Edmonds in the Glendale Presbyterian church Sunday morning. The sermon, in part, follows:

"The eighth chapter of Romans is the victory chapter of the Bible, the safety passage in his great epistle. Paul reaches a place where he ceases to argue and begins to claim. In the midst of the holy reverie of victory and safety he lifts his face toward the morning and says, 'we are saved by hope.' We are not saved by dwelling on our difficulties, but by counting our blessings; not saved by fears, but through faith. We are saved by hope.

"Hope is more than cheerfulness, or a bright, sunny disposition. Hope sees how things are going to be when God has His way. Hope knows, in the darkest night, that the dawn approaches. Hope cries, 'All things work together for good to those who love God.' Therefore we may face any situation with confidence and peace.

"This was Paul's attitude toward life. He had troubles enough to make an ordinary man sour and pessimistic, but Paul's troubles never became worries. His attitude toward life was one of unconquerable hope. See Paul in action; he faces mean men; they tried to trick him; played him false. He says, 'Alexander, the coppersmith, did me much harm; the Lord reward him according to his works,' and dismisses the case. The Lord will take care of Alexander; it is not worth while to be overly disturbed about him. See Paul before his work. He has the care of all the churches, yet it is not on his nerves. He is not staggered by the size of the task, work elated him, it summoned him. He said, I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me.'

Firm in Peril

"See Paul in peril, in the shipwreck on the journey to Rome. The passengers are scare'; rush hither and thither. But Paul is calm. There will be no loss of life. He looks death calmly in the face and says 'All's well.' See him bearing utter loneliness in his trial at Rome. His friends all turn coward — 'Notwithstanding, the Lord stood with me.' You can't make that man lonely who has the Lord by his side. Paul's optimism was steady and permanent; it was a habit of life, whether the day was gay or gray, the load light or heavy, whether surrounded by friends or foes.

"What was the secret of this great mood of life? In the first part of this chapter the foundation was suggested—'No condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus.' His security came from Calvary. That is where true optimism must start. The people who are permanently happy in this world are those who live on friendly terms with God.

"Second thing is life. Paul knew himself to be a new man; something had taken place in his soul, changed everything. His poor old body was the same, bruised, battered, with his thorn in the flesh; but Christ lived in him. He whose life is hid with Christ in God is safe from calamity.

Third Is Adoption

"Third was his adoption. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.' Paul had the fullest assurance that he was the son of God. Why should a child of God break down? True, losses come, health and happiness taken away, but the treasures, the real riches, remain untouched.

"A fourth secret of his hope was in his expectation. 'For the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God.' Paul was looking for something big—he is a great expectant. The best is yet to come.

And, finally, there was prayer as the big source of his hope. Paul was an optimist because he believed in Christ, who said, 'Ask.' He leaned on Him who said, 'If ye abide in Me, ye may ask what ye will.' With that kind of a bank account, why should one ever be anxious? A man who never prays can never be an optimist. Christian optimism is a spirit of big dimensions; it has breadth, for its hope and confidence are as wide as the race. It has depth, for it roots itself in the plan of God. It has length; its program is infinite. It is threefold: we have been saved, are being saved, and shall be saved. It has height—only the Gospel can lift this sunken world up into the very presence of God. O, the length and the breadth, the height and the depth of the love of God.

"My brethren, I commend to you the comfort of the Gospel of Christ. Let Him keep you and fill your tired heart with peace, for we are saved by hope."

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

In a most sensible stand President Coolidge is reported to be putting the lid on all propaganda tending to make it appear that the United States is in a race with Japan or Great Britain for the utmost naval preparedness.

It might as well be stated again, for the benefit of those who have heard the siren cry of the jingo, to positively assure everyone that the American people want peace, they will fight for peace, and they are not the least imperialistic.

But, for those who try to foist peace plans upon us, it might be well to repeat the ringing cry of Revolutionary days: "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute."

There you get the slant of those who are crying for preparedness; not for war, but for defense. Japan or any other nation need feel no fear of America attacking in the lust of a Germany. The president is perfectly right when he says that we should not consider war with any country. That is particularly so in the case of Great Britain.

But, with the surge in China, we know not what the Orient will bring forth. And should Russia, with its vast resources, ever throw the world into bloody conflict again, or England be beset by the Moslem—

Why, it is only natural that the United States and the rest of the Americas should be able to go on and do business as usual.

Open warfare has been declared on the gasoline tax by the oil refiners. It is not strange that they should oppose the government making them a collection agency, and their argument that highways should be paid for by ALL the people has a deal of logic, but California is in a unique class when it comes to raising revenues for highway maintenance and construction.

State revenues are raised by taxing corporations; railroads are first among these sources; they are NOT highly benefited by motor traffic, except from an auxiliary standpoint. It would be useless to change the basic law and add to the corporation's burden for the benefit of the highways.

To suggest an ad valorem tax would be to court disaster at the hands of political pirates as the years roll around. Taxes are high enough on real property, especially in the more congested areas, where special assessments for smooth streets for auto travel are levied directly against the property owner. The latter at least expects those who use the pavements to pay for their maintenance and reconstruction.

So we return to the gasoline tax, It is collected quite equitably although it may not be the ideal solution to the one big problem of keeping highways sufficient to meet the increasing number of motor cars.

The oil refiners have our sympathy, like a piano mover. We don't want his job. We fear he is overdoing himself, at times. But there isn't any better method developed for moving pianos, so far as the writer has noticed, than strong backs, plenty of brawn, and a few choice words for the fine lady who is the recipient of the baby grand, on the fifth floor back.

And that's that.

SUNLAND NOTES

SUNLAND, Dec. 16.—Formal dedication was made Sunday of Annette Kellerman's projected Hidden Rancho country club-gymnasium for women. The property is located about two miles west of the main part of Sunland in the flat of the Tujunga wash on well wooded land. Considerable improvement activity is in evidence in the form of road scrapers and rollers, construction tools and sheds. Scenic drives have been laid out on the grounds that promise to be very attractive when all improvements are in. The grounds are thickly grown with large trees which make a natural setting for the club buildings.

A gymnasium building and several smaller buildings are in the course of construction and a swimming pool is being excavated. Large crowds visited the grounds all day Saturday and Sunday, attracted by the signs which are placed along the highway where the Rancho road leads off near the bridge over the Tujunga wash. Formal invitations issued to a large number of selected prominent persons also drew many visitors. The club as proposed will include an up-to-date gymnasium equipment and a golf course. The promoters state that Miss Kellerman will have personal supervision of the athletic activities of the membership, which will be limited to women. Elaborate plans have been made for a luxurious club that will cater to feminine lovers of the outdoors.

The Sunland Baptist church has offered the use of the church basement for meetings of the proposed Boy Scouts of Sunland, according to a report made at a meeting of the Valley Center Improvement league. Ten dollars was appropriated by the league for donation to the new scout troop fund. Incorporation has held the attention of the members in meeting for several weeks. The move of the Sunland residents to incorporate a city of the sixth class is generally approved by the league, which comes within the territory inside the city limits of Sunland.

SING MESSIAH TONIGHT AT SCHOOL

Glendale Music Club Will Present Oratorio at Broadway High

Music lovers have a treat in store tonight when Handel's glorious oratorio, "The Messiah," will be sung at the Broadway High school auditorium by the Glendale Music club.

A chorus of 100 selected voices and four star soloists, Monnie Hays Hastings, soprano; Clemence Gifford Johnson, contralto; Alexander J. Kisselburgh, baritone, and Harold Proctor, tenor, assisted by the Philharmonic orchestra and directed by John Smallman, have been rehearsing for four months to make this a notable performance.

When it is realized that it took Handel only twenty-four days to compose "The Messiah" it can be seen how inspired he must have been with his subject to have given it the richness of feeling that runs through the entire oratorio.

"The Messiah" was first sung in Dublin April 13, 1741, and the proceeds went to Handel's pet charity, the foundling home. Probably it was his love for little children that enabled him to portray so graphically the old, yet ever new, theme of the Christ-child.

When this oratorio was later produced in Covent Garden the audience was deeply moved and the king, overcome by his emotion, rose to his feet to hear the Hallelujah chorus, thus setting a precedent, which is observed to this day.

The sale of tickets has been heavy and a full house is indicated. A few reserved seats, however, will be available at the box office. Pacific Electric busses will meet all cars.

GIFT FOR CAR IS XMAS SUGGESTION

Something For Auto Is Holiday Motto Of Many Dealers

"Something for the car" with special attention paid to accident prevention features Christmas gift purchases this year judging from the care and thoughtfulness with which holiday shoppers are selecting purchases of motor car equipment and supplies at the Western Auto Supply Co.

Articles that are thoroughly practical are in demand and it is an easy task to make such a selection as all automotive accessories owe their appearance on the market to their qualities of safety, beauty and economy.

Safety first necessities have jumped into favor, which doubtless is due to attention being focused on the increasing number of automobile accidents and the necessity for more careful driving.

This tendency has found expression in the purchase of articles which will increase the safety of car operation and the lives of occupants of the machine. While the array of products that come under this classification is very extensive the more popular articles are bumpers, visors, chains, spotlight, stoplights, fire extinguishers and rear view mirrors.

CONFIRMATION CLASS HELD AT CHURCH

Sacrament Received by 128 Boys and Girls; Bishop Conducts Ceremony

One hundred twenty-eight boys and girls received the sacrament of confirmation when Right Rev. John Joseph Cantwell, bishop of the diocese, visited the Holy Family parish last Sunday. The church had been decorated for the occasion, yellow chrysanthemums, palms and fern being used to make a background for the impressive ceremony.

At the 10:30 o'clock mass, the procession entered the church led by the boys, who wore white ribbons on their arms. The girls followed, their snowy dresses and filmy veils symbolizing purity. Directly behind the children came the bishop and his attendants. The Knights of Columbus formed a guard of honor.

Following the high mass, the confirmation class sang "Come Holy Ghost." Bishop Cantwell addressed the children impressing upon them the obligations that rest upon a true Christian and the necessity of living according to the commandments of God. The bishop then addressed the parents, urging them to teach their children by example, not daring to lead lives they would not want their children to imitate.

Following the confirmation ceremony the boys and girls sang "Faith of Our Fathers" and proceeded the bishop out of the church in procession. Rev. Michael J. Galvin was heartily congratulated by the bishop and the laity on the large group of representative young people forming the confirmation class. Bishop Cantwell also expressed his hearty approval of the growth of the parish and the condition of the church buildings.

Under the regulations of the Revenue Bureau these refund checks are held in the local office for three months and those remaining undelivered must be sent to the general accounting office at Washington.

SOLICITATION SCHEMES TO BE CURBED

C. C. Secretaries to Discuss Best Methods at Meet Here Saturday

Inauguration of a state-wide system of co-operation between chambers of commerce in an effort to curtail illegitimate soliciting of merchants and the public generally, will be the main topic of discussion at the meeting of the Southern California Commercial Secretaries' association in Glendale Saturday. The proposal that chambers throughout the state, or at least in Southern California, co-operate for the mutual benefit which would be derived from the elimination of useless, yet costly schemes of solicitation, was first made to the secretaries by Howard I. Wood of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Wood acted on behalf of the solicitations committee of the Glendale chamber which has undertaken to advocate such a step.

Through the solicitations committee of the local chamber, working in conjunction with the Merchants' association and the Advertising club, all schemes of solicitation are investigated before they are given the stamp of approval. Schemes which lack the approval of the committee are not to be patronized by merchants and others who are co-operating.

In the event that the scope of this work could be broadened, Secretary Wood explains, each city would have its solicitations committee to function within its own jurisdiction. There would be a central head office which would be notified in all cases where a scheme was turned down or disqualified by any one of these committees. In turn every city in the combine would be quickly notified so that in the event the solicitor sought to work any other town, the need of a recheck would be unnecessary.

Register At C. C.

The secretaries, eighty to 100 strong, will be in Glendale Saturday, registering at the chamber of commerce offices, 150 South Brand boulevard, at 11:30 o'clock. Lunch will be served at the Masonic temple at noon and will be followed by the general business session. The entire meeting will be devoted to the discussion of problems of the secretaries with reference to improvement and betterment of service.

Members of the board of directors of the Burbank Chamber of Commerce will attend the session in a body as will also the directors of the Glendale chamber. Secretaries or other representatives of every chamber of commerce in Southern California will be present.

STATE REGULATION

That the states are taking care of the matter of child labor is the principal argument heard against the ratification of the child labor amendment. But the facts are these:

In the United States one child out of 12—and in some states one child out of four—is gainfully employed.

One million children from 10 to 16 years of age are working in the United States in factories, mills, mines, canneries, fields and so on. Nearly 400,000 of this 1,000,000 are between 10 and 14 years of age.

Only thirteen states measure up in all respects to the conservative standards of the first and second federal child labor laws.

Nine states have no law prohibiting all children under 14 from working in factories and stores.

Twenty-three states with a 14-year minimum wage limit have weakened their laws by permitting exemptions under which children not yet 14 may work.

Thirty-five states allow children to go to work without a common school education.

Nineteen states do not make physical fitness for work a condition of employment.

Eleven states allow children under 16 to work from nine to eleven hours a day; one state does not regulate in any way daily hours of labor for children.

The manufacturers and the farmers are afraid to leave this matter to Congress, fearing that that body may pass laws prohibiting all labor of all children under 18. But it will be remembered that our federal child labor laws, recently pronounced unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, were laws passed by Congress and were working out beneficially for the children of the land.

HANDLING TRAFFIC LAW VIOLATIONS

A new method of handling violations of the traffic laws has been suggested. This is, that minor offenses of this kind be taken out of the courts and placed under the jurisdiction of the registrar of motor vehicles, who should have the power of suspending licenses. Of course there would be final appeal to the courts.

Every driver of an automobile knows that it is next to impossible to take his car out of the garage in the morning and bring it back at night without having broken some traffic rule or law. Motorists often break rules without knowing it, sometimes they violate laws to avoid accidents or traffic tie-ups; again they may do so because the law is foolish and observing it will cause delay and serve no good purpose. Of course, there are some who break the laws through recklessness and carelessness or who drive while intoxicated.

But the thought is that minor infractions of the traffic laws should not brand the driver as a criminal. Speed laws in some localities are complex, contradictory or ambiguous and sometimes ridiculous. A reporter on a Los Angeles paper who started out on a drive about the city determined to observe all the traffic regulations soon found himself in a mess.

As for reckless driving, driving while intoxicated and careless disregard for the rules, suspension of the license is the only adequate punishment. To most offenders of this kind the small fine assessed means about as much as the nickel they may throw to a beggar. But show him the inconvenience of walking and riding on the street cars, put him in the pedestrian class and let him dodge other careless drivers and it will have a tendency to make him think when his license is restored to him.

GOVERNMENT REGULATION

President Coolidge in his recent message to Congress expressed the belief that business initiative should not be hampered by too much legislation and government regulation. And he put into words what the rest of the country was thinking. Railroad officials complain that hearings, investigations and inquiries have been so numerous at Washington and railroad managers have been so busy compiling statistics and preparing arguments to be presented to different commissions, boards and bureaus that they have not had opportunity to give time and attention to the proper operation of the roads. They do not ask that reasonable government regulation be abandoned, but they do desire time to run their roads.

Commenting along this line, the San Bernardino Sun says the idea that the ills of the country can be cured by legislation is not as prevalent as it was a few years ago. People are taking to the notion more and more that less government in business is a pretty good policy. "The farmer got his fill of government regulation when the Wilson administration made the Congressional guaranteed price of wheat a maximum price and paid him less for his crop," says the Sun. "Not in any respect has government price-fixing proven satisfactory. Regulation to the extent of preventing fraud and injustice has proven beneficial, but the whole country wants relief from bureaucratic control of the operation of business."

DEMAND FOR CREDIT INEXPLAINABLE

Someone describes credit and interest as a pitiless juggernaut and calls upon the press as well as all leaders and teachers to help snatch the people from the pathway of this monstrous thing.

It is pointed out that the cause of economic distress in the United States today lies at the door of the people themselves. A comparison of our government with any other that ever existed will show that ours is the best ever devised. But the working people of America are determined to run into debt. The workers of the United States are better paid than any other workers have ever been, and this fact makes their demand for credit inexplainable.

The expansion of the banking business, it is claimed, with a decrease in deposits by the people, proves that most of this borrowed money is coming from Wall street, which will soon be all-powerful.

We hardly think the records will show that the bank deposits of the people are diminishing. Most of the money borrowed by the working people is used in building or buying homes, and credit or interest which establishes another home is neither a juggernaut for the family nor the country. And the country has ceased to be frightened by the cry of "Wall street."

BIRDS OF A FEATHER—!

What To Do With Money

By DR. FRANK CRANE

According to the way that society is at present organized, money tends to accumulate in the hands of individuals.

This has always been the case and the record of great individual fortunes in the past.

These fortunes were formerly used to build up a great house or to endow some institution or to build a church or to otherwise do something to perpetuate the fame and name of the founders.

There has recently taken place a law suit between Prince Yousoupoff of Russia and Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia, in which the former is suing the latter, endeavoring to get his collection of Rembrandt paintings away from him.

Mr. Widener's art collection is valued at $50,000,000, and he aims to expand it to the greatest gallery in the world and prseent it to the American people as a memorial.

His father, P. A. B. Widener, began this collection and it is the intention of his son to complete it and present it to the public.

As the public never has the sense nor the spare money nor the disposition to devote large sums of money to art, it is reserved for millionaires to do this.

The Rembrandts for which the Prince brought suit now hang in the Dutch gallery of Mr. Widener's Philadelphia home with paintings of Van Dyke and other masters of that country.

Mr. Widener has paid some $10,000 to restore the paintings.

If the prince wins the suit the paintings will probably be retained in some private collection in Europe and if Mr. Widener wins they will eventually go to the public from which the money originally came.

We are not only under a government by politicians, but the public is aslo cared for by millionaires.

Mr. Rockefeller's Foundation and his various colleges are instrumentalities by which wealth makes itself of use to the people. Also, Mr. Carnegie's libraries.

If the public had the intelligence to vote large sums to art and medicine and similar things, it would not be necessary for millionaires to thus dispose of their money, but, since the public will not do it, millionaires know of no better way to dispose of their accumulation.

A woman recently lost $60,000 worth of pearls and diamonds in a New York street. For a rich person to put this amount of money into an institution, for art or medicine or other means of instructing the public, is certainly better than to devote the same amount to personal adornment.

What to do with one's money after one has accumulated it is often as hard a problem as how to get it in the first place.

Horoscope

Contrary influences rule this day, according to astrology. While Venus is in malefic aspect the Sun is friendly.

It is a day in which to avoid business dealings with women, who may be exceedingly difficult in their manner of closing transactions.

Love affairs are especially threatening at this time when girls may be more mercenary than they are when the rule is more auspicious.

While women appear to be subject to unfavorable rule, they may still have luck in seeking positions.

There is a sign read as most favorable for all who look for employment. It should be an auspicious government under which to obtain a better salary for the new year.

Much planning for large enterprises may be expected at this time when there will be many new openings for big business.

It should be a lucky time for all who apply for government offices and should make for great prosperity.

Educational affairs are likely to be widely discussed and to cause anxiety in certain quarters. Much money will be needed for colleges and universities.

Mortality may run high as the year closes, scientists and medical men being numerous among those whose careers end.

Considerable fluctuation may be expected on the money market at this time when the temptation to speculate will be very strong.

While this rule of the stars is not particularly promising to the theaters, the season will be most successful, it is foretold.

Foreign affairs come under a most promising sway, making for better international relations.

Persons whose birth date it is have the augury of a fortunate year in business. Those who are employed may expect promotion.

Children born on this day may be more successful in business than they are in love affairs. These subjects of Sagittarius often have good friends of the opposite sex through whom benefits come, but they are not lucky when they venture into the realm of romance.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED

Who's Who

The man who will step into the Senate March 4 as Rhode Island's new member in the upper house started life as a wool sorter in the Wanskuck mills near his home to learn the wool industry. His apprenticeship served, he went to Yorkshire college, England, to study textile manufacturing.

Now a multi-millionaire, he is devoting his time to politics and many charities and philanthropies.

He is Jesse Houghton Metcalf.

Metcalf was born in Providence, R. I., Nov. 15, 1860. He is a Republican. Although he has held many minor appointive offices his election to the senate gives him his first real important post.

He has made many important gifts to charitable and educational institutions. The beautiful Memorial Hall, a part of the Rhode Island School of Design, is one monument to his philanthropic spirit.

Today's Poem

LET 'EM GO BACK!

If I knew a better country in this glorious world today,
Where a man's work hours are shorter and he's drawing better pay;
If the Briton or the renchman had an easier life than mine,
I'd pack my good this minute and I'd sail across the brine.
But I notice when an alien wants a land of hope and cheer,
And a future for his children, he comes out and settles here.

For the peasant out of Russia, for the long subjected Pole.
It is here the sons of Italy and men of Austria turn
For the comfort of their bodies and the wages they can earn.
And with all that men complain of and with all that goes amiss,
There's no happier, better nation on the world's broad face than this.

So I'm thinking when I listen to the wails of discontent,
And some foreign disbeliever spreads his evil sentiment,
That the breed of hate and envy that is sowing sin and shame
In this glorious land of freedom should go back from whence it came.
And I hold it is the duty, rich or poor, of every man
Who enjoys this country's bounty to be all American.

OPPOSES VALLEY WATER DIVERSION

Stormy Night Meeting at Sacramento Marked by Frequent Clashes

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 16.—After a stormy night session marked by frequent clashes between delegations from the San Francisco bay district and representatives of the two interior valleys, the Sacramento-San Joaquin river problems conference adopted a resolution opposing diversion of water by San Francisco and Oakland from streams in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys.

The resolution as finally adopted omitted reference to the Hetch Hetchy plan of San Francisco and the Mokelumne water development scheme of Oakland. The resolution declared, however, that "it is poor policy to divert the waters of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, that will eventually be needed for their development, away from said valleys when other water can be obtained that will fully care for their needs and injure none of the great agricultural and industrial interests of the state."

The coast cities should secure their water from drainage basins along the northern coast of California, the conference decided.

BUDGETS TAKE NOTICE OF CONGRESS

Department Heads, Bureaus Tussle Over Who Will Be Actual Boss

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright. 1924

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Now that Congress has settled down to an examination of the various appropriation bills some of the inside difficulties between the budget bureau and the heads of the government departments will be coming to the surface.

President Coolidge has made his pledge for economy but at a price which means controversy. Nearly all of the cabinet officers endeavored to cut down their departmental expenses, but in many of the annual reports will be seen the true desires of these departments.

The army wants to maintain a certain efficiency. The navy people are talking about the necessity of bringing the strength of that force to the ratio of 5-5-3. Some of the talk is in justification of appropriations requested, and some of it is in expectation of increases by congress itself in the readjustment or rearrangement of appropriations. The public knows only about the total sums recommended by the departments with the approval of the president. The controversies preceding those recommendations are natural sequels to the effort of the budget bureau to wield the axe.

In one instance, there came a direct conflict on a certain item between the budget bureau and a cabinet officer. The latter took the matter to the president personally.

"If you approve that cut," said the cabinet officer good naturedly, "you don't need me or anyone in my place. Either the budget bureau runs my department or I do." The item stayed in the estimate of expenses of that department.

Economy vs. Efficiency

The foregoing incident illustrates how economy and efficiency may clash. The budget bureau offers its ideas of what may be cut but the cabinet officers feel they are responsible for the proper operation of their departments and that any cut which touches their organizations vitally should be eliminated. The president becomes the arbiter in such disputes, and usually when a cabinet officer has made a good argument his opinion has been accepted by the chief executive.

This process of using the budget system hasn't been in operation long enough to determine whether in time cabinet secretaries will resent what they consider to be outside suggestions or rather outside decisions on matters of policy affecting their departments.

From the viewpoint of the budget bureau there is much to be said about the relativity of various economies. The problem of the budget bureau is to cut expenses everywhere to achieve a certain goal. The problem of the individual department is to maintain a certain efficiency, yet, there will be items viewed as important by a cabinet secretary but which in the eyes of a budget officer may be less necessary than an expenditure in another government department. The budget bureau looks at government expenses as a whole. The cabinet officer sees only the necessities of his own department.

Important Connection

The general public has little idea of how important in this connection has become the deciding power of the chief executive. He is loaded with a great deal more detail than ever before. And when his task is done and the estimates are submitted to congress, the senate and house begin to exercise their judgment. Members of the various committees are urged from the outside to insert this or that item or to cut here and there. Again the budget officer's opinion can be sought and there is opportunity for the revival of controversies previously aired between the budget bureau and the department heads.

Congress has shown a disposition to respect the recommendations of the budget bureau. To the extent congress continues to hold its appropriations within the budget will the long hours of debate inside the executive branch of the government be worth while, but if congress should add a few appropriations of its own, as it suggests every session, the whole painstaking labor of the president, his cabinet officers and the budget director may come to naught. So what the congress does in committee in the next few weeks will decide the fate of the new budget.

GOLDEN FRUIT CATCHES EYE OF TOURIST

San Bernardino, Riverside Counties Offer Sight Never Forgotten

By GIL A. COWAN
Of The Evening News Staff.

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 16.—In the empire of the orange, the golden fruit on the green trees at this season of the year provides a sight for the tourists' eyes which none should be denied.

Mile after mile of orange groves and lemon groves are passed in a trip through parts of San Bernardino and Riverside counties as made by this writer. It is an all too common sight for the resident of the southland to appreciate, but the scintillating globules in the early morning sun, the fragrant scent of ripening citrus, the sharp tang of air blown down from snowtopped mountains to the east, is the thrill of a lifetime.

San Bernardino and Riverside and other inland cities are building although much more slowly than Glendale. However, they are building with that permanence which is impressive and further, San Bernardino is just starting to build. Many new edifices are being planned there.

The purpose of the trip at this season to these neighboring county seats of similar trade potentialities was to compare Glendale with these older centers. It is interesting to note certain little differences.

Older Structures

In both San Bernardino and Riverside there are many older structures which look a bit shop worn, but the tradesmen are firmly established and have heavier stocks, not having the advantage of close proximity to the metropolis as Glendale.

Commercial life begins shortly after 7 o'clock in these rural centers. The breath of breakfast literally greets you at sunrise. And strange as it may seem to the Glendale housewife the bulk of shopping is done in the morning by the townfolks while in the afternoon the ranchers' wives and later the school children with errands and in the evening the workers returning from their daily toil tarry to buy those necessities which are the bulwark of trade.

In Glendale stores begin to do business at 9 and a peak is reached in the late afternoon when everyone tries to buy. Out here in this far-flung valley nestling at the slopes of Rubidoux one finds the day is longer and larger for the business people and not half so thrilling.

During the Christmas season the shops are open at night for the country folk and trade is brisk until 8 o'clock when everybody either goes home or attends the church or theatre. It is too chilly most evenings at this season for window shopping.

But the windows are attractively dressed, the stores do a substantial and almost unvarying business the year round. There are likely as many vacant storerooms here as elsewhere; just as many failures; numerous outstanding successes.

It's different—and it's the same as in Glendale.

For instance, hours of trade, class of trade and types are different; but volume of business, lines of goods and the psychological appeal of merchandising are almost identical.

There is one noticeable thing about Riverside and other towns closer to the desert. They place a high value on trees which serve the double purpose of windbreaks and shade. Also, there is a plentiful supply of native Indian help in both the homes and stores, a stolid faced youth which fits well with the retirement and enjoyment in small wealth.

Paavo Nurmi Ready to Chuck American Tour; Indoor Trial Upsets Him

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—It is touch and go today as to whether Paavo Nurmi of Finland, the greatest runner of all time, will return to his native land without so much as placing a spike on an American track, or if he will go through with his scheduled campaign in this country. Those in charge of Nurmi's training make no secret of the fact that he is disgusted with his first efforts to run indoors and that, if he followed his natural inclinations, he would take the first steamer home.

Hugo Quist, trainer of the Finnish-American A. C., who is in charge of Nurmi's workouts here, says Nurmi is a most difficult man to handle, and declared this morning that he feared the great runner might step out of the program outlined for him.

The Wrath To Come

CHAPTER LXVI

"Susan, I want to tell you this. You're a delightful child and an amusing tomboy and I've often wished that you were just a few years older."

"Why?" she demanded breathlessly.

"Never mind. But, in addition to youth, you have a brain, and you're one of the pluckiest girls I've ever had with me in a tight corner. Don't think I've forgotten it, because I haven't."

"Rubbish!" she laughed.

"And I'm going to say this to you," he continued, turning towards her, so that she suddenly saw that he was in earnest, and became very still indeed, "I've got a half-finished job on my hands, and how it will turn out I don't know. It will be a matter of six months before I'm through. When I'm through, I'm coming right back. And, Susan, I don't want to say too much, but I don't think those boys are going to be quite what you deserve in life. It's horrible to feel a little too old."

She suddenly gripped his hand.

"Idiot!" she murmured. "You're not a bit too old. I wouldn't marry Bobby Lancaster if he were the last man on earth."

She was looking at him with a suspicious mistiness in her eyes. Her mouth was quivering just a little. And then it all passed. She was herself again—slim, girlish, delightful, with the audacity of a child and the certain promise of the woman's beauty in her delicate immaturity.

"I don't know how I can trust you to cross the Atlantic alone," she laughed. "How many of the crew of the Grey Lady have you sacked?"

"Not one," he admitted. "I've forgiven them all. You don't think Blunn is going to smuggle himself and a few desperate plotters on board, do you? Or put an infernal machine there to blow me sky-high?"

She shook her head.

"I'm honest," she said thoughtfully, "when I tell you frankly that I don't like letting you go alone. You, in your sedate middle age, do need a little looking after, sometimes, you know—somebody with the common sense of youth. However, it's just an idea, I suppose. I wish you luck in America, Grant."

Once more she looked at him. He felt the peace of a great understanding in his heart. Those were not the eyes of a child.

"Yes," she answered. "I hope you will come back safe and soon."

At a few minutes after ten the next morning the Blue Peter was flying from the masthead of the Grey Lady and the last of a little stream of tradespeople were leaving the yacht. There was the usual crowd of loungers upon the dock to watch the departure, and on the bridge Lord Yeovil and Grant were standing a little aside, talking.

"If anything could make me a convert to your somewhat alarmist point of view, Slattery, Blunn's behavior last night would do it," the former acknowledged, after a little desultory conversation upon the events of the evening before. "I still don't understand what was at the back of his mind."

"I can tell you," Grant said. "You'll find a copy of that speceh will appear broadcast throughout America. 'Cornelius Blunn, the great shipping magnate, entertains Prime Minister of Great Britain to celebrate invitation to the United States to join the Pact of Nations.' That's the sort of headline you'll see in every paper which counts. Every word he said will appear verbatim. It's wonderful propaganda for Germany."

"He stole a march on me, I'm afraid," was the somewhat rueful admission.

"Never mind," Grant consoled him. "We've won the first bout, after all, and Blunn knows it. For all his carefully laid scheme to prevent it, America is invited to join the Pact of Nations. Now we'll have to strip for the second bout. We shall have to fight like hell to get that invitation accepted. You don't follow our domestic politics, sir, I expect."

"How can I?" Lord Yeovil protested. "I've problems enough of my own to deal with all the time."

"The opinion of the educated and intelligent citizen of the United States upon any vital subject," Grant expounded, "is sometimes, unfortunately, an entirely different matter to her voting force. That is our only danger. Cornelius Blunn and his friends know quite well that if America accepts the invitation of the Pact, all those grandiose schemes which have been formulated and brought to maturity by Germany and her friends fall to the ground. Peace is assured to the world for an indefinite period of time. Germany must abandon her hope of revenge. Japan must reconcile herself to the permanent subordination of the yellow races. Therefore, strenuous efforts will be made in America to prevent her acceptance."

"I can quite believe that," Lord Yeovil assented. "The peace lover will have German-American interests and the Japanese influence to fight. Still, I can't help thinking that on a question like this the common sense of the country will carry all before it."

"I am with you there," Grant agreed, "and yet it is a fact that there have been, even within my memory, laws passed by the legislature which were in absolute opposition to the will of the people. The voting power of America is a chaotic and terribly uncertain quantity. Our friend Blunn will be over there before a month is passed. Prince Lutrecht will be visiting at Washington. I shouldn't be surprised if Baron Funderstom takes a little tour there, too. Headquarters will be moved from Monte Carlo to Washington and New York, and we haven't any reasonable means of coping with all the flaring, misleading propaganda which will be let loose to induce America to refuse this invitation within the next few weeks. The only hope will be if, by any remote chance, one of us is able to discover proof of the subsequent intentions of Germany and her jackals. Otherwise I honestly believe that there is a serious possibility that the United States, in the most courteous possible tones, will decline your invitation."

THE GATEWAY

The empress or emotions has come into her own! Pola Negri, again directed by Ernst Lubitsch, the very director who first discovered her genius and first brought it to full flame.

Here is Pola displaying all the fire and seductiveness that made her famous; a Negri lavishly gowned and splendidly supported in a fine story of regal romance and intrigue.

"Forbidden Paradise" is an adaptation by Agnes Christine Johnston and Hans Kraly of the play, "The Czarina," by Lajos Biro and Menyhert Nengyel. It has for its background a small Balkan kingdom during the reign of a beautiful, brilliant, farsighted and able Czarina—such is Pola's role. She rules with an iron hand, tempered with justice and love for her people—and finds relaxation from the heavy cares of state in love making.

Rod La Rocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Stark head the supporting cast in featured roles.

The finesse of Mr. Menjou, as the chancellor, is superb. Always treading upon slippery paths, where a slight mistake will lead to disaster aong the labyrinths of court intrigue, Menjou has created in this character one which will long be remembered among his gallery of interesting people.

Miss Starke, as the wistful Anna, presents a delightful characterization. Her contrast to the fiery Pola beggars description. Her quiet beauty acts as a splendid foil for the Czarina.

The rest of the players are equally well cast.

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"Only 38" will open again at the Tuesday Afternoon club theatre Wednesday night, with the same cast, announces Mrs. Florence Dobinson, the curtain rising as 8:15 o'clock. The play is from the pen of A. E. Thomas and deals with college life in its less serious phases. It is excellently staged and large audiences last week voted it one of the best offerings of the Dobinson Players to date this season.

THE GLENDALE

"Chalk Marks' concludes today at the Glendale Theatre. Wednesday and Thursday the picture is "Dark Stairways," featuring Herbert Rawlinson.

THE T. D. & L.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE LOST PIG

Once upon a time Uncle Wiggily went off to hop by himself in the woods, thinking he might meet with an adventure. The rabbit gentleman took with him his little, short tail. For he didn't want to leave it at home in the hollow stump bungalow, because Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy might step on it.

"And if there is one thing I don't like," said Uncle Wiggily as he met Uncle Butter, the goat, "if there is one thing I don't like, it is to have my tail stepped on. Some think, because my tail is so small, that it doesn't mean anything to me. But it does—a lot."

"Same way with me," bleated Uncle Butter. "My tail is short, too, and I've often heard horses laughing at it. But I don't care. It suits me."

So Uncle Wiggily took very good care of his tail as he hopped over the fields and through the woods looking for an adventure. Once some stickery burrs caught on the bunny's tail. He stopped and picked them off. Then he hopped on a little farther.

But, no matter how far he hopped, nor how many fields and patches of woods he crossed, he couldn't find an adventure.

"No matter," said Uncle Wiggily cheerfully to himself. "I shall stay out until dark, if need be, until I meet with an adventure. I must have one."

Then he went on a little farther, and still he had no adventure and it began to get dark.

Now I am sure something will happen," whispered Uncle Wiggily to himself. "Adventures always come after dark."

Then, all of a sudden, he heard a rustling in the dried leaves and from behind a bush a voice cried:

"Quee! Quee! Quee-wee!"

"Oh, ho!" thought Uncle Wiggily, "this is an adventure all right. I thought so. I'm in luck. Now I'll have some excitement." So he called out: "Hello there! Who are you? Are you the adventure I'm looking for?"

"Quee! Quee! Quee-wee-wee!" cried the voice again. "No, I'm not an adventure. I'm just a poor, little, lost pig and I don't know how to get home. Quee! Quee!"

"Oh, you're Squeakle Squealer, the little pig brother of Curly and Floppy Twistytail, for it was so dark in the woods now that he could see no one.

"Yes, I'm Squeakle Squealer," was the answer. "I'm a little lost pig, boo hoo! Oh dear! I'll never get home."

"I'll take you home," said Uncle Wiggily kindly. "I'll hop on ahead and you follow me behind." Off he started and the little pig began to run, but, all of a sudden he squealed:

"Stop, Uncle Wiggily! Wait! I can't see you. It's so dark!"

So the bunny rabbit waited until the little pig caught up to him, and then he went on again through the woods. But soon again Squealer cried:

"I can't see you! I'm lost again! Quee! Quee-wee! wee! wee!"

"I know what we'll do," said Uncle Wiggily kindly. "You take hold of my tail in your teeth, Squealer, and hold fast. In that way you won't lose me in the dark. But don't bite my tail."

"I'll be careful," said Squeakle. Gently he took hold of the bunny's little short tail, and then Uncle Wiggily hopped on, leading the little pig through the dark, and Squeakle didn't get lost again, and was soon safe at home.

"I had a jolly adventure," laughed Mr. Longears telling Nurse Jane about it. "And it didn't hurt my tail at all. And if the little dog doesn't chase the rubber ball up the tree where it can bounce down on the head of the pin I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the pretty berries.

Three days after starting its use, the soreness left my gums; my teeth began to tighten. Now my teeth are clean, my breath sweet and my mouth completely healed."

The experience of Mrs. Travis is duplicated in hundreds of other cases. If you have pyorrhea—or threatened with pyorrhea your teeth are in danger. Quick and effective treatment is necessary. You can test, without money risk, the treatment used by Mrs. Travis. Simply write the Moreham Co., 206 Gateway Station, Kansas City, Mo. Under their guarantee of refund send two dollars. Or, pay postman the $2 with few cents postage. Use the treatment seven days. Then if you are not wholly satisfied, write to that effect and your $2 will be returned at once. —Advertisement.

HAWKERS VIE WITH XMAS SHOPPERS

Street Peddlers Downtown Mix With Throngs to Ply Their Trade

By MARIAN MARSHALL
For Southland News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—Toddle back to ol' Lunnon town for the gim cracks and gew gaws of yesteryear and jazz them up to 1925 models, if you would describe the snappin', poppin', leapin' thingumbobs to be seen on the city's streets today.

Never in any of its previous fete days including the visitations of the circuses, has Los Angeles harbored such an array of hawkers as pester the Christmas shopper with their ten and fifteen-cent novelties.

"See it jump," cried one as he manipulates a spring-footed rabbit with a rubber bulb.

"It squawks, it dances, it's a flippity flop, it's a balloon," cry the chorus of anvil voices rasping against the sound of clanging street cars in the gas-filled canyons of the metropolis.

Yes, there's a story connected with those balloons. Most of them are imported from Germany in paper packets. They are gaudily painted, but replicas in miniature of the "Los Angeles" ZR-3.

"Zeps" Capitalized

The Germans are no "dumbkopfs" when it comes to capitalizing their reparation in the way of the world's largest gas bag which was transported to the United States by the thin air route.

Merchantmen brought thousands of little "zeps" which sell for a dime, with their cheaply printed cardboard salons pasted to an inflated rubber bag that looks like a pickle and pops like a hot horsechestnut when pricked.

Americans didn't know how they would sell in stores, but the street peddlers seem to be making a barrel of money out of a most useless investment of the realm's smallest piece of silver.

Among the latest to join the ranks of the catchpenny profession are a most worthy lot—disabled war veterans who have set up stands for the sale of cracked walnuts. Nice, fresh stock, too, although there are impostors no doubt, who are not backed by the American Legion in this worthy enterprise.

Lamp Shade Puzzles

Among the latest "wows" in thoroughly entangling their captors is the wire frame being sold for hand-made lamp shades. They are cagy pieces of merchandise that have the barrel-sized bandbox and the spinster's bird cage completely outdone.

Wrapped in paper these frames are soon punctured by the jostling crowd. Unwrapped and swung from the free arm of any sizable matron, or her equally awkward husband, they create tangles and wrangles too amusing to describe.

Messenger boys who used to have their wheels loaded by shipping clerks and sent on their way to artfully dodge the traffic have come to grief in having to stop at street intersections. Overloading the handle bars no longer is practical.

Ah, this Christmas shopping is delightful if you come to maul the crowd after having made your gift purchases in the stores closest home. It takes a strong constitution to survive the rush.

Missouri to Open Bids For Big Cement Order

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 16.—The Missouri highway department will open bids on December 19 for 1,403,000 barrels of cement. This material will be used in construction of state highways.

Hotel at Lake Donner Is Destroyed by Fire

TRUCKEE, Calif., Dec. 16.—Loss of $15,000 was caused when the Summit hotel, famous resort, burned at Lake Donner, according to word received here. The cause of the fire was unknown. Heavy snow prevented the blaze wiping out other resort structures.

IS EVERY DAY A BACKACHE DAY?

Glendale Folks Have Found the Cause and Corrected It.

Is your back lame and achy? Are you tortured with sharp, rheumatic pains; miserable with headaches, dizzy spells and kidney irregularities? No wonder, then, you feel worn-out and discouraged. But have you given any thought to your kidneys? You should! Weak kidneys cause just such troubles. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Here's a Glendale case.

Mrs. C. H. Prasuhn, 1514 S. Gardena Ave., says: "Sharp, cutting pains took me through the small of my back and there were times when I could hardly stoop or straighten. Those pains only dug in deeper each move I made. During the day, this trouble was always worse, especially if I stood any length of time. Doan's Pills, however, helped me at the start and one box from the Owl Drug Co., cured me, which has been lasting."

COMMON COLDS (ACUTE CORYZA)—Part 2

Can you take cold by sitting in a draft?

Since we have known that colds can be infectious, the idea that drafts can cause them has been flouted, but we can flout too far. As often happens, when a new view is taken on a subject, the old view is utterly discarded. We are not to go to extremes. Now there is no doubt at all that drafts can cause colds, if the person who is in the draft sits in it long enough to become chilly, or if his resistance has been lowered by some other means. In these cases, the drafts take the role of the last straw in the proverb. (We must not forget, however, that sometimes a chill that is experienced in a draft, may not be the sign that the cold is starting from the draft, but a warning that the trouble has already begun.)

In yesterday's paper, I gave some of the reasons why colds are more prevalent in winter, and I mentioned the long chilling through insufficient day or night clothing, the stagnant air in improperly ventilated houses, and the dry air due to modern methods of heating.

There are other things that can lower the resistance to colds as well as to other diseases. You know them well enough, but I'll review them anyway: Insufficient sleep, exhaustion from overwork or play, improper diet, and so forth. These are all I can think of right now. Wait, here's another list: Adenoids and bad tonsils in the throat, polyps and malformations in the nose. Now one or more of these low-resistance-causing conditions, coupled with the germs that are always present on the mucous membranes of the head, or coupled with the fresh batch of virulent germs from an acute cold from your neighbor, will be apt to produce the symptoms which we call a bad cold but which in reality, in the beginning stages, is a fever.

You have the beginning of a cold. What are you going to do? First, you are going to try to put a quietus on these "cold" germs which are going to poison you and produce the symptoms. So, then, your first move in helping Nature is the local treatment of the nose and throat with some antiseptic lotions, applied with a swab or spray, three or four times a day. This local treatment will abort a cold in many cases. If the germs have gotten too much of a start, however, your cold will have to run its course until your system manufactures the defense, kills off the intruders and antidotes their poisons. Even in this case, the local treatment is of help in shortening their course.

Formulas for Local Treatment

Eucalyptus oil, 30 drops; menthol, 10 grains; camphor, 15 grains; liquid petroleum, 4 ounces. One-fourth iodine and three-fourths glycerine is also a good formula. A 10 per cent solution of argyrol is another effective medication. Argyrol is a blackish fluid of non-irritating silver salts and like the other formulas, is harmless if a little runs back in the nose and is swallowed. It does not keep well for longer than a week. Argyrol leaves a stain which can be removed by wiping off with one to one thousand solution of corrosive sublimate—mercury—made with an ordinary 5 grain tablet in a quart of water. Remember this solution is poisonous, and if you save any of it, mark the bottle "POISON," and tie a tiny bell on it and put out of the reach of children.

Gargle or spray the throat often with very hot water. A teaspoonful of baking soda and a teaspoonful of salt to the pint of water will make the gargle more effective. Follow this with the oil or glycerin soution.

Next week we will have an article on the general treatment of colds. Save this paper to go with it.

Tomorrow—Answers to Correspondents.

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e., if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

M. F. D.—"Can you tell me how to remove the whitish stain from a crock caused by putting down eggs in waterglass?"

Answer — Many housewives have asked me this question and I have consulted several chemists about it, only to find that nobody knows how to remove it. So the best thing you can do, is continue to use the same crock for putting down eggs in waterglass. The old waterglass marks do no harm when you use the crock for the same purpose.

Mrs. C. F.—"How can I clean a marble shelf?"

Answer—You should have told me whether the polished surface of your shelf is roughened, or possesses its original smoothness. If its polish is unimpaired, soap and water is the best thing for it, wiping it dry at once. To polish it, rub it with another smooth piece of marble and water. If, however, the finish is dulled and rough, smooth the surface with a damp cloth dipped in powdered pumice, then polish with whiting. Acids of any kind will take off all the polish, so if the surface is perfect do not use these on it in any way. But if your shelf is old and badly discolored, try the following excellent cleansing method: Make a solution of one part oxalic acid (POISON) and ten parts alcohol (or have your druggist make it for you), and apply this with a brush or swab; as soon as the stain on the marble disappears, rub it with a cloth wrung out of cold water, then wet with ammonia. The alkali in the ammonia neutralizes the acid and stops its action. Do not permit the acid to remain on the marble longer than 30 minutes at the longest, as it will destroy the finish. Grease may be removed from marble with a paste of turpentine and whiting; cover the grease stain and let stand for some time, then wash off with soap and warm water. For general cleansing when badly soiled, use kerosene. Salt and vinegar also cleanse marble, but the vinegar is acid and should not be left on more than a few minutes.

G. R.—"Please make suggestions for appropriate articles to stand on the top of a lady's dresser and a man's chiffonier."

Tomorrow—Dainties for The Christmas Dinner

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman, in care of the "Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

Children's Party

Children at the Episcopal Orphans' Home at Annandale will be given a Christmas party Saturday night, December 20, by members of the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Mark's Episcopal church, according to plans completed at the meeting held at the Guild hall last night. Dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock by Mrs. J. J. Gaulrapp, followed by a short business session directed by Miss Grace Crampton, president. Plans had been made to hold the party for the children on December 19, but last night the members decided to hold the party Saturday night. Toys for each of the thirty-seven children have been donated by the girls of the society. Forty tarlatan bags which the members made and sewed with bright colored yarn, have been filled with apples, nuts and candy. Names of the children have been tied on the bags. Miss Gladys Kattleman, member of the society, will be "Santa Claus" at the party and distribute the gifts to the children. Entertainment for the evening will be a program arranged by the society with refreshments of homemade cake and lemonade served later. Members of the society will meet at the church Saturday night at 7 o'clock and go from there in automobiles to the Orphans' Home. Further plans were also made for the Christmas party to be held Monday night, December 22, at the home of Miss Ethel Read, 701 North Central avenue. Names of members have been drawn so that presents will be placed on the tree for each one present. A short program will be presented after which there will be other entertainment. Miss Beena Jenson is chairman of the committee arranging for the party with Miss Elizabeth Stevens and Miss Georgia Campbell. During the meeting last night the weekly paper of the society was read by Miss Muriel Gambrill.

Holiday Affair

Members of the J. O. C. class of the Pacific avenue Methodist church held a jolly Christmas party last night at the home of Mrs. George Moore, 221 West Elk street, thirty-two members of the class being present. A short business session was held with Mrs. Ida Artis, president, presiding. Reports from the various officers and committees were heard when it was reported that $103 was realized from the bazaar held by the class in November. The money is being used for the purchase of silverware for the church. The Christmas offering for missionary work was also taken. Six new members for the class were reported. Rooms of the Moore home were attractively decorated in Christmas colors of green and red, with red carnations, ivy and colored crepe paper being used as decorative features. The Christmas tree was gaily decorated. Gifts for each person present were distributed from the tree by Santa Claus, who was impersonated by Mrs. Grace Maynard. Refreshments of candy, sandwiches, cake and tea were served later in the evening. The next meeting of the class will be held January 9.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

ANSWERED LETTERS

Betty D. S.—Sometimes you can dry up pimples of long standing if you cover them with a mixture of cotton saturated with a mixture of equal parts alcohol and ether, with two tablespoonsful of flour of sulphur to every half pint. This must be shaken well before using. Agar-agar is a Japanese seaweed in flake form. It does not digest, but forms into a gelatinous mass and pushes ahead of it all waste and poisonous matter through the intestines.

In the matter of taking acids, each person's system differs, so no one can say whether acid fruit and vegetables are good or bad. Reduction through the diet is the best way, as there is no risk upon the health whatever if you do not reduce too rapidly.

Reddy—Tan and light cases of freckles will bleach off at this season by using such simple ingredients as lemon juice or buttermilk.

Embarrassed Henry — Scrub your feet every night using a soap in which there is some salicylic acid, and finish the bath with cool and then very cold water. Rub dry with a coarse towel and add a hand massage until there is evidence of perfect circulation throughout the feet and toes. This treatment will restore the skin to normal action and relieve the drain upon the perspiration glands.

Mrs. Catherine B. H.—Henna is more satisfactory for tinting gray hairs than the mixture of sage and sulphur; however, neither of these will hurt the hair so it is a matter of which one will tint to the shade that suits you best.

Discouraged Ann—The blackhead powder is made by mixing together one ounce of powdered borax, one ounce of almond meal, and two ounces of cornstarch. Use the powder in place of soap.

Young mother—A fine toothed comb is very irritating to the scalp so it should never be used except for special needs. Dandruff is easily removed if you give the scalp a treatment of hot oil, or an egg treatment in which you rub the egg into the scalp and let it dry. In either case shampoo the scalp and the dandruff will disappear for a time.

W. Franklin T.—Beef is not fattening, but it is usually taken from the diet if there is a tendency to rheumatism. You had better consult the doctor about the high blood pressure.

Sally Ann—Poor elimination usually causes a red nose or an oily skin. Drink more water, and try a simple diet for a time until there is an improvement in your skin.

Tomorrow—Face Massage, No. 1

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. 700,000,000 Matches Lighted Daily In U. S.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—More than 700,000,000 matches are lighted each day in the United States, and each has the possibility of a life-and-property destroying conflagration, said Richard E. Kropf, supreme regent of the Royal Arcanum, in a safety address here. He cites statistics of fire underwriters that 486,000 matches are consumed per minute, and that the careless disposal of matches by smokers caused an annual loss of some $18,000,000.

"Matches in the home should be regarded as carefully as a dangerous chained animal," he said.

Each year from 1,000,000 to 6,000,000 persons are out of work for weeks and even months, the fraternal head said.

26-YEAR-OLD 'PONZI' HAS TROUBLES

Des Moines Bank Closes After Young Clerk Hits High Spots

By CARL P. METZNER
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 16.—The curtain has fallen on one more sensational slice-of-life drama in which a "boy wonder" of finance startled the countryside with another spectacle of Ponzi-istic getting-rich-quick.

Isadora Luchesi, erstwhile vice-president of the now defunct United States bank, idol of Des Moines night life, spender de luxe and Lothario extraordinary is very willing today to be the guest of the Polk county jail.

There Isadora is drawing the first free and easy breath he has known for many months, for there alone, he knows, he is safe from the wrath of the depositors whose money he used without invitation. Blithely he has waved aside all proffers of bonds which would temporarily set him free. Jail looks good to him.

An insatiable desire to reach the highest social pinnacles, combined with the love of pretty faces and a penchant for gambling—all of which could not be catered to on a young bank employe's salary, led this 26-year-old "financial prodigy" as his friends were prone to call him—to delving into the bank's funds.

Downfall Explained

Luchesi offers but two explanations for his admitted downfall: one, the bromidic alibi of "wine, women and song," and the other the frank admission, "I was too young for the job."

Of Italian lineage "Izzy," as he was known here, was the very idol of his countrymen. He had worked up quickly from a post as teller to assistant vice-president. His pleasing personality and rare aptitude for making friends, soon won him the direction of the bank's foreign department and Izzy drew to his bank the largest Italian patronage in the city.

The new patrons, many of whom could not read or write English, placed implicit confidence in him and daily handed him large sums, asking him to "do the rest."

Dazzling Night Life

Meanwhile Izzy became a dazzling figure in the city's night life. The divorce his wife obtained from him a year or two ago, leaving him free from encumberance as a husband and father, only served to heighten his pace. His tempestuous love affairs became open secrets.

On October 22 the bank closed its doors. Luchesi was nowhere to be found. It was reported he had been murdered.

This past week the bank opened its doors long enough to settle with its customers. Then it was disclosed that thousands of dollars recorded by Luchesi in the books of Italians failed to appear in the bank ledgers. Further investigation revealed other irregularities, the total of which still is unknown.

Late Wednesday, Luchesi, well guarded by deputies, arrived in Des Moines from Memphis, Tenn., where he is reported to have lived for the past six weeks under an assumed name, conducting more love affairs. The familiar smile was lacking—until he got safely behind the bars.

zero at Edmonton, Alberta. Pressure is also high from Quebec southward to the West Indies.

"The weather has become much warmer in portions of the lake region, the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys and portions of the southern states. There have been general snows within the last twenty-four hours in the northwest, including the north Pacific states, and rains in Northern California, Arizona, the lower Ohio valley and eastern Tennessee.

More Predictions

"The western disturbance will move southeastward to New Mexico and thence northeastward to the lower lake region, attended by general precipitation over the states east of the Mississippi river. It will be preceded by rising temperature, and following its passage the great area of high pressure and decidedly colder weather now over the northwest will overspread the greater part of the United States.

"The temperatures will start to fall in the lower Ohio valley tonight, the upper Ohio and lower Mississippi valleys on Wednesday or Wednesday night, and the Atlantic states about Thursday."

Pacific Northwest In Grip of Snow and Ice

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 16.—Below freezing weather held the Pacific northwest in a grip of snow and ice today.

From southern Oregon up the coast far into Canada, the storm had penetrated, crippling wire and telephone communications in many places.

At Walla Walla, Wash., zero weather was predicted. Various parts of western Oregon and Washington experienced five and six inches of snow in yesterday's fall.

Raliroads, power and telephone companies and other utilities were preparing today for a prolonged fall of snow. Six thousand telephones were out of order at various intervals in Portland last night.

Logging Camps Closed

Service out of Portland to Tillamook, Salem, Oregon City and other state points were out last night, but were repaired. It is not known how long the lines will withstand the storm.

Logging camps of Oregon and Washington were closed down by the snow. Train service was delayed at many points.

Strong northwest winds, reaching a gale in force along the coast, were predicted today. Storm warnings are up from the mouth of the Columbia as far south as San Francisco.

An average of 100 pounds of sugar for every person in the United States is consumed here every year.

People of Switzerland like American-made rubber shoes, and buy more than 140,000 pairs a year.

URGE D. H. SMITH AS COUNCILMAN

President of C. of C. Has Not Yet Decided as To His Course

D. H. Smith, manager of the Brand boulevard branch of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank and president of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, whose many friends are urging him to permit his name to be formally presented to the City Council for appointment as councilman to succeed Councilman Asa Hall, summoned by death, today stated that he had the matter under consideration.

Mr. Smith has received a communication from the Glendale Republican club in which that organization states it desires him to accept the appointment as councilman. The club has also petitioned the council to name Mr. Smith.

Many friends and representatives of various organizations are urging Mr. Smith to allow his name to formally come before the council. He has not, however, agreed, saying that he wishes to give the matter thorough consideration.

Petition from Club

Following is the petition to the city council from the Glendale Republican club:

"The Honorable Mayor and Members of the City Council of Glendale—We note with deep regret the sudden passing of one of your former honorable members and that his death has created a vacancy in your ranks which public necessity requires to be filled immediately by appointment of your honorable body.

"In view of the exigency thus caused, the Glendale Republican club believes it is responding to a popular demand in the best interests of the city of Glendale when it petitions your honorable body as it hereby most earnestly does by respectfully asking that you exercise the authority vested in you, to appoint D. H. Smith to fill the vacancy caused by the death of your late fellow member, the Hon. Asa Hall.

"It is not necessary for us to undertake the recital of the qualifications of Mr. Smith for this high office. They are as well known to you as they are to us and other members of the community.

"We believe the best interests of the city will be served by the appointment of Mr. Smith to this position and that this action on your part will command the support, respect and confidence of the community.

"GLENDALE REPUBLICAN CLUB,
"R. S. Person, president; Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, vice-president; L. H. Wilson, vice-president; Col. Jas. W. Everington, executive secretary; W. H. Richards, recording secretary; J. C. Sherer, treasurer; H. M. Butts, chairman; A. T. Cowan, Thos. D. Watson, Miss Eva Daniels, Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, executive committee; H. V. Adams, chairman finance committee and ex. officio member of executive committee."

Letter to D. H. Smith

Following is the letter from the Glendale Republican club to Mr. Smith informing him that the club has petitioned the City Council to appoint him to the council:

"D. H. Smith.

"Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank,

"Dear Mr. Smith—This is to inform you that the Glendale Republican club has petitioned the mayor and members of the council of the city of Glendale to appoint you to the vacancy in that honorable body caused by the sudden death of Councilman Asa Hall, whose death we know that you, in common with us and all citizens, deeply deplore.

"The public exigency is such that it will be necessary to fill the vacancy by appointment without unnecessary delay and we respectfully request that you give assent to our action and accept the appointment which we earnestly desire shall be tendered you. This action is prompted by our knowledge of your qualifications and by a desire to serve the best interests of Glendale. We urge that you make the sacrifice for the public good which we are well aware the service will require of you.

"If you accept this responsible position at this time, we pledge you our loyal and unselfish support in the discharge of the arduous duties which we are fully conscious it will impose upon you.

"Very respectfully,

"R. S. Person, president; Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, vice-president; L. H. Wilson, vice-president; Col. Jas. W. Everington, executive secretary; W. H. Richards, recording secretary; J. C. Sherer, treasurer; H. M. Butts, chairman; A. T. Cowan, Thos. D. Watson, Miss Eva Daniels, Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, executive committee; H. V. Adams, chairman finance committee and ex. officio member of executive committee."

President Is Neutral On Armament Question

the elevation would violate the latter, the president made it clear he would look on it with disfavor. Also, it was stated, the rapid development of aircraft has made it questionable whether it is advisable to spend this money for improvement of capital ships, when it might better be spent, perhaps, in improving aerial defense.

A distinct rift has developed between President Coolidge and his secretary of navy, over administration naval policies.

It has widened steadily since the submission of the new budget, appropriating $10,000,000 less for the upkeep of the navy this year than last, despite the evidence of experts and the general board that the navy today is considerably further from the 5-5-3 ratio than it was a year ago.

Wilbur May Resign

Today Washington was filled with renewed reports which could neither be positively confirmed nor positively denied, that Secretary Wilbur will soon part company with the administration and either accept a re-appointment to the judicial service or retire to private life.

Secretary Wilbur has been frequently "in hot water" since he became a member of the president's official family. At the direct instance of Mr. Coolidge and William M. Butler, the Republican campaign manager, his stumping tour of the west was cancelled and he was summoned back to Washington. After his return here he took no further part in the campaign.

Wilbur was chief justice of the supreme court of California when he accepted the appointment to become Edwin Denby's successor. He was scarcely known to President Coolidge when appointed.

CANDIDATE IS CHOSEN FOR PRESIDENT

Name Santa Monica Woman At Club Council Meet In Los Angeles

Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer of Santa Monica, vice-president of the Los Angeles district, California Federation of Women's clubs, who has attended many club affairs in Glendale and has many friends among local club women, was officially announced yesterday at the district presidents' council in Los Angeles, as candidate for the presidency of the district, to succeed Mrs. Charles H. Toll of Glendale.

The Tuesday Afternoon club of Glendale was one of the five clubs endorsing Mrs. Lorbeer and pledging her support. During the council, endorsement of Mrs. Lorbeer's candidacy came from the Santa Monica Bay Women's club, which was in session. Then presidents of Pomona Ebell, Tuesday Afternoon club of Glendale, the California Badger club and the Los Angeles Reciprocity club, pledged her their support.

Mrs. Charles S. McKelvey, district parliamentarian, then declared that, according to the by-laws, the endorsement of five clubs justifies Mrs. Lorbeer's name on the ticket as candidate for president. So far there has been no other candidate mentioned.

Declines Office

Mrs. Daniel Campbell, junior past president of the Tuesday Afternoon club of Glendale, took occasion at the council yesterday to declare that she was not seeking the presidency and that she had given no authorization for the endorsement of her name as a possible candidate. Her public denial is said to have been a dramatic moment at the council. Her declaration was, in substance, the same as the statement she gave The Glendale Evening News last Friday, when a Los Angeles paper announced her as a possible candidate.

Glendale women at the council yesterday were Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. J. H. Toal, Mrs. John Robert White, jr., Mrs. H. S. McCormack, and a group from the Thursday Afternoon club, whose names appear in today's social column.

Mrs. Charles H. Toll was unable to attend because of the illness of her son, Carol. Reports state that his condition is improved.

Pupils of the Wilson Intermediate school of which Carrie M. Noble is the principal, celebrated Christmas with the presentation of Christmas plays by the various classes. Most of the plays presented were written and produced by the pupils. They chose their own stage directors and made all arrangements for production. Decorations were in Christmas colors. Singing of Christmas carols by one of the eighth grade classes under the direction of Mrs. E. Kirk Kent, was heard. Singers went about the neighborhood singing and finished by singing to patients at the sanitarium.

WANTED!

Capable business man with from $5000 to $10,000 cash or collateral to aid in financing the continued expansion of a rapidly growing manufacturing and merchandising business in Glendale.

The man desired is one preferably over thirty years of age with a successful experience in sales management or business administration who must be quite capable of assuming responsibility and with the qualities of leadership well developed.

The industry inserting this advertisement is one which commenced operations on June 1st this year with one man, who without capital, friends or credit, and in spite of quiet times and the off season for his line, has in that short time evolved an incorporated industry doing business on a cash basis that now employs a permanent, ever-increasing payroll of thirty-four residents of Glendale.

This unusual record of growth and expansion has been accomplished without ostentatious advertising or promotion schemes and hot air, but, to the contrary, is the result of new, bright and intelligent merchandising ideas, several good formulas, manufacturing A-1 good goods, plus real service, co-operative effort and everlasting hard work throughout the organization.

The business is amply financed for present needs and can give references to satisfy the most exacting, including leading business houses in Los Angeles, as well as banks.

Having made a very satisfactory start in covering the whole of Southern California, this concern is preparing to open a branch in San Francisco on Feb. 1st, for the purpose of handling Northern California, besides which the foundations are being laid for the merchandising throughout the entire U. S. A. of a specialty which is having an immense local sale in California.

RURAL REGION PLANNING IS REQUESTED

New York Realty Boards Ask Work In This Line Be State-Wide

Specific recommendations for securing state-wide orderly planning of rural regions in the vicinity of cities now rapidly developing into residential or industrial suburban areas are made by the New York Association of Real Estate Boards in resolutions just adopted at its annual meeting.

The New York Association's stand is of particular interest to members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards because of its close connection with the subject of development of the metropolitan areas of cities, which will be a principal matter of discussion at the coming annual meeting of the National Convention in Dallas, Texas, January 13-16, inclusive. The subject will come before the Home Builders and Subdividers Division of the association at its roundtable on the opening day of the convention.

Future subdivisions should not interfere with arterial highways of travel, or be allowed to spring up in such an unplanned way that they react unfavorably upon themselves or their neighbors, the New York resolutions point out. The association asks for:

Recommendations

An amendment to the general municipal law to give all planning commissions created under the law supervision over all subdivisions within the municipalities.

Action by all member real estate boards of the state urging their respective towns to appoint planning commissions and begin to operate under the existing law.

Action by all member real estate boards to promote the co-operation of planning commissions in contiguous areas (cities, villages and townships) looking toward ultimate co-ordination of local plans and the development of broader regional plans.

Appointment of county boards or commissions under the existing law.

Provision in all large subdivisions of suitable places for parks, recreation spaces and auto parking areas.

A state committee is at work on feasible plans for promotion of the objects set forth.

FARMERS SEEK XMAS FUNDS ON WHEAT

Products Being Rushed To Markets So Gifts Can Be Purchased

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—"Christmas money" is the main thing in the minds of the farmers of the country this week and their needs, which have a marked effect on nearly every industry in America, are going to lead vessel owners and sailors into danger on the great lakes in consequence in order to get wheat to market.

The time limit of insurance rates on lake traffic expired November 30, but boat owners were given the privilege of insuring vessels and grain cargoes at increased rates until December 12 when navigation officially closes. After this date they sail at their own risk, but this is not likely to check shipments entirely.

Grain receipts at Duluth have been well over the 150,000,000 bushels mark since August. As a result of those and other shipments from the grain belt, growers of grain have approximately $600,000,000 more to spend than they had at this time last year. There are some 6,400,000 farmers in the country, so each is nearly $100 better off than a year ago. Some of that $100 apiece is going to be spent in the next two weeks, and retailers all over the country have been shooting in orders for extra goods in consequence.

Plenty of Money

There will be no lack of Christmas funds among those agriculturists who have specialized in other products than wheat. The cotton growers who have not marketed their crops, have received strong advances from cooperative associations which are holding them for favorable market conditions.

The same applies to tobacco growers, dairy men and wool growers. Most producers have marketed enough of their corn direct to give them ample cash to see them through until the live stock, to which the remainder is fed, is sold. Sugar beet growers have had substantial advances and Santa Claus can have no ill fed reindeer when he pulls his big loads up to the farm house chimneys on December 24.

The farmers, although many of them have laughed at the agriculture school graduates and the so-called "gentleman farmer" for years, are apparently anxious to get into the amateur class. This has resulted from the awards given at recent agricultural and live stock shows. The "dirt" farmer says that he is unable to compete successfully for these prizes with grain and animals produced at educational institutions and experimental farms subsidized by federal or state governments or with the products of gentlemen farmers who care nothing for expense.

He therefore asks that he be placed in an "amateur" class from which rivals, except from his own class, are excluded. They say the purpose of the prizes is to encourage farmers to breed better cattle and grow better grain whereas in reality there is no incentive to that end since they feel that they cannot compete with those supported by large public or private funds and supplied with every facility science has devised, no matter how expensive.

Experts declare it will not be many years before America is using all the farm products produced in this country and must import from other lands. Leaders in agricultural school development are seriously worried over where the country will get farmers to produce the commodities needed. There has been a marked decrease in enrollment of students at the agricultural colleges.

"Since 1914 the enrollment of students in agricultural colleges has declined at an alarming rate," said Henry Sandbolt, executive secretary of the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, today. "In thirty-four of these institutions on which we depend to educate the country's future farmers and to make more money for those engaged in agriculture, our investigation shows that the average enrollment has decreased from 458 in 1914 to 289 this year. As a matter of protection and development of the country's basic industry upon which prosperity hinges, we need more trained leaders."

HALIFAX, N. A staff of scientists, appointed by the biqlogical board of Canada, will work in co-operation with the Dalhousie university and the Nova Scotia Technical college in instructing those interested in the fishing industry.

Millions Staked In Legal Battle For Sugar Lien

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16.—Millions of dollars and control of Hawaiian sugar were at stake today in a legal battle under way in Superior court here. Stockholders are seeking to regain possession of the H. Hackfield & Co. properties in Hawaii from interests that today dominate the industry of the islands. The properties were seized and sold during the war, and, in his opening statement, John Francis Neyland, attorney for the plaintiff, charged that the defendants, who include leading business men of the islands, criminally conspired among themselves to acquire the properties of the plaintiff at a price of $7,500,000, which, he charged, was far below their true value.

BAKER NAMED LEADER OF EXCHANGE

Crystal Ice Manager to Succeed Johnston as Club President

William Baker, manager of the Crystal Ice Co., was unanimously elected president of the Glendale Exchange club to succeed R. E. Johnston, at the meeting held today noon at the Masonic temple. Dr. H. R. Harrower was re-elected first vice-president, and C. M. Christy, sales manager for Harrower Laboratory, was chosen second vice-president.

The election of first and second vice-presidents followed the action of the club members in voting to change the by-laws of the club permitting another vice-president to be named. Dr. Harrower, who is now in England, was named as first vice-president by reason of his valued assistance to the club in the past year.

T. P. Culhane was re-elected secretary of the club after an amendment to the by-laws making the position of secretary an elective instead of appointive office, had been passed.

Chosen Directors

Dr. George Campbell, C. H. Roudebush, J. C. May, R. E. Johnston, A. J. Lockwood, W. Claire Anspach and C. C. Coghlin were elected directors. Present directors are: W. E. Daniel, W. C. Waring, Ralph Pierce, George Whitaker, D. Ripley Jackson, William Baker and George Thomas.

George Hallett was elected treasurer to succeed George Thomas, after A. J. Lockwood withdrew.

Annual reports were made by the following: Judge H. W. Chase, W. Claire Anspach and William McMillin for the civics committee; W. H. Daniel, reception; William Baker, attendance; George F. Orgibet, house and luncheon; W. C. Waring, flagpole; Ralph Pierce, flowers; C. M. Christy, publicity; George Thomas, finance; A. J. Lockwood, entertainment, and T. F. Culhane, secretary.

A resolution on the death of Asa Hall was adopted by the club. It was drafted by W. R. Vanderwood, George Orgibet and George Thomas. William Baker offered a resolution endorsing the appointment of D. H. Smith as successor to Councilman Hall, and it was passed unanimously.

R. E. Brown of the Glendale Bootery distributed calendars. Secretary Culhane reported there were thirty-one members at the club on January 1, and fifty-seven at the present time. Councilman C. E. Kimlin, in the discussion on the proposed sign, said there was not enough money available for such a sign.

FARM LABOR NOW UP TO STANDARD

Spring Shortage Eliminated According To Report Of Foundation

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—The shortage in the supply of farm labor that has existed since early spring has been checked, and the ratio of the supply to the demand averages 99.7 per cent, or practically normal, according to a Chicago Agricultural foundation report, based on figures prepared by the United States department of agriculture.

A labor shortage exists in the North Atlantic states, where the demand is 88.4 per cent normal, while the supply is only 79.1 per cent. This is due, according to the report, to the emigration of negro labor to the northern industrial centers.

Most Serious Surplus

The most serious surplus of farm labor is found in the western states, where the supply is 102.2 per cent normal and is competing with an 86.5 per cent normal demand. This gives a 118.2 per cent supply of demand ratio, the report states. Supply of labor on October 1, 1923, was 77.5 per cent of normal, and demand was 91.5 per cent, making an 84.8 per cent supply of demand ratio. On September 1 of this fall the ratio stood at 99.7 per cent, or practically normal.

With improvement in farm conditions and a movement of demand back to normal, corresponding increase in supply is looked for. No serious farm labor shortage or surplus is anticipated.

Canada Consumes More Fish Than All of U. S.

MONTREAL, P. Q., Dec. 16.—People in Canada eat twenty-five pounds of fish each a year, while people in the United States consume only five pounds each per annum, according to figures in a report issued here at the annual meeting of the Canadian Fisheries association.

"Fish consumption in Canada totals 200,000,000 pounds annually," says the report. "At the same time fish consumption in the United States, which has twelve times the population of Canada, is only 600,000,000 pounds annually. The fish ration of Canada could easily be raised to an average of fifty pounds, or one pound per person per week."

BATTLE FIELD PICKED FOR SATURDAY

Dynamiters and Compton to Play at Washington Park In Final Contest

The Southern California prep grid title will be settled next Saturday afternoon at Washington Park, Los Angeles, when the Glendale Dynamiters and the Compton Gladiators meet in the finals. Glendale is the champion of the Central league and Compton finished at the top of the Bay league schedule.

Both teams have fought their way into the finals by defeating all opponents picked from other leagues. Glendale tied Van Nuys, San Fernando Valley league, trounced Colton, Tri-County league, tied and then walloped Orange, of the Orange County league, and now is ready for Compton. Compton tied and then defeated Pomona, walloped Santa Maria, "the terror of the north," and expect to walk over Glendale on Saturday.

The game will attract a large gathering of football fans who who have been following the records of the two schools during the 1924 season. The attendance at the Pomona-Occidental game on Thanksgiving was rivaled last Saturday when Orange and Glendale battled at Patterson field, while the Compton-Santa Maria game drew a large crowd the week previous, and on Thanksgiving at Pomona, and December 2 at Santa Ana, large multitudes saw Compton and Pomona play.

Officials Are Named

The officials for the final game Saturday have been agreed upon by Coach N. C. Hayhurst of Glendale, and Coach Pine of Compton. They will be: Referee, Blair; umpire, Daugherty; headlinesman, Foley; field judge, Hunt.

The Dynamiters will work out on the Washington park field tomorrow afternoon, and the Compton crew will unlimber Thursday at the scene of the coming battle. Both teams are putting in long hours this week preparing for the fray, the fact that the Christmas vacation is on gives the players plenty of time to practice without being hampered by classes.

There will be no advance sale of tickets, it has been announced. Tickets for the game will be sold at the park on Saturday. Established prices agreed upon are: Students, 35 cents; adults, $1.

Brown Picks All-Star Team

While the famous indoor sport of selecting mythical grid teams is in full swing, Norman E. Brown, noted sport expert and special writer for The Glendale Evening News sport department, names his choice. The youth with the determined look, shown below, is STAROBIN, tackle of Syracuse.

FIRST TEAM

ENDS—Wakefield of Vanderbilt, Craig of Pennsylvania.
TACKLES—Weir of Nebraska, Starobin of Syracuse.
GUARDS—Slaughter of Michigan, Diehl of Dartmouth.
CENTER—Lovejoy of Yale.
QUARTER—Stuhldreher of Notre Dame.
HALFBACKS—Grange of Illinois, Crowley of Notre Dame.
FULLBACK—Layden of Notre Dame.

SECOND TEAM

ENDS—Pulaski of Wisconsin, Bjorkman of Dartmouth.
TACKLES—Hancock of Iowa, Beattie of Princeton.
GUARDS—Abramson of Minnesota, Farwick of Army.
CENTER—Walsh of Notre Dame.
QUARTER—Darling of Boston College.
HALFBACKS—POND of Yale, Koppisch of Columbia.
FULLBACK—Wycoff of Georgia Tech.

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News.

Choosing sectional all-star teams is a difficult matter. There is always a wealth of material for at least four places on the team and this gives the chooser a difficult problem if he cares to be painstaking and fair.

But after these western, eastern and southern aggregations have been assembled—on paper—the task confronting the so-called expert is trebled. One is then faced with the unpleasant duty of relegating most of these stars for each position to the background in favor of one or two, lone players.

However, the teams named above, represent to my mind the pick of the intersectional stars and I believe it would stand actual test.

On the first team the hardest selections to make—the ones that took the most careful thought, were those of center and fullback. To my mind Lovejoy of Yale and Walsh of Notre Dame stand in a class by themselves as centers. Walsh had the benefit of a great backfield. This made his work on offensive easier. Working with the same quartet all the time Walsh's passing became machine-like in precision. Lovejoy, on the other hand, worked before a dozen men during the year. That he was able to make his general work stand out above that of any other center is, therefore, all the more remarkable.

Garbisch's great toe work in the victory of the Army over the Navy is taken into consideration. This brilliant booting, however, is not a necessary part of a perfect center's repertoire.

The placing of Hazel Rutgers below Layden of Notre Dame and Wycoff of Georgia Tech may strike many as odd. Hazel is a wonderful fullback. He drew the lion's share of attention in the east partly due to the picturesque career he has had and the fact that he is a husband and father.

I do not believe, however, that he outplayed either Layden or Wycoff. Wycoff's work against Layden and the Notre Dame juggernaut indicated his worth.

The other selections might be changed without materially weakening the team, so closely are the men ranked in ability.

More southern players receive prominence this year than heretofore for the simple reason that the south enjoyed one of its greatest years on the grid. Wakefield, the Vanderbilt end, is one of the greatest wing men of the present day. His work against Minnesota was a revelation to northern fans who knew of the southern star and the Vanderbilt team only through news dispatches and sport chatter in various papers.

Third Team

Ends—Rokusek of Illinois, Binham of Yale.
Tackles—Taylor of Georgia, Prevost of Penn State.
Guards—Buckler of Alabama, House of Penn State.
Center—Garbisch of Army.
Quarter—Parkin of Iowa.
Halfbacks—Baker of Northwestern, Reese of Vanderbilt.
Fullback—Hazel of Rutgers.

Honorable Mention

Ends—Ollinger of Auburn, Stout of Princeton, Taylor of Navy, Romey of Iowa, Otte of Loyola, Mahoney of Holy Cross, Lemon of Centre, Tilghman of Florida, Lunn of Yale.
Tackles—Holleran of Dartmouth, Johnson of Michigan, Jenkins of Ohio State, McGinley of Penn, Simmons of Mercer, Bach of Notre Dame, Berreshem of W. and J.
Guards—Papworth of Pennsylvania, Bieberstein of Wisconsin, Pondelik of Chicago, Lawrence of Tulane, Goldstein of Florida, Joselove of Georgia.
Centers—Kubale of Centre, Claypool of Purdue, Probst of Alabama, Horrell of California.
Quarters—Covington of Centre, Dinsmore of Princeton, Gillis of Alabama, Dooley of Dartmouth, Farley of West Virginia.
Halfbacks—Schutte of Minnesota, Chicknoski of Lafayette, Benkert of Rutgers, Gehrke of Harvard, Browne of Tulane, Don Miller of Notre Dame, Harry Thomas of Chicago, Tryon of Colgate, Oberlander of Dartmouth, Slagle of Princeton, Cuddebach of Leland Stanford.
Fullbacks—Nevers of Stanford, Kruez of Pennsylvania, Thomason of Georgia, Nardacci of West Virginia, Lidberg of Minnesota, McBride of Syracuse.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—From what can be gathered from American league men, who are in the peculiar position of being urged by a rival league to assist in the ousting of their own president, it seems that the strongest argument against Johnson in his own circuit is that he failed to attend the world series of 1924.

Not all the war against Johnson is outside of the American league, although the American leaguers were not prepared for the attack launched against their executive at Hartford. There is some disposition in the American ranks to feel hurt that Johnson failed to show up in Washington or New York, to lend his presence to what, after all, was a show of his own organization, and one that turned out more happily for that organization than any that ever had been played.

The American league never has felt more jubilant, or more like crowing over a series, but whenever they feel like crowing loudest they have to swallow with some chagrin the fact that their president was not on hand to see the job put over. If Commissioner Landis, President Heydler of the National league and Johnson should ever get down in a corner to fan over the world series and discuss which player and which team made the best showing, the American league feels that it would be at a disadvantage because their boss did not see Walter Johnson fan Kelly in the ninth inning of the last game.

The American league men are not for a noisy exchange of words and they deplore the gabble that went on and has been going on since the series was played. As a matter of fact most of that gabble is merely a muttering campaign against Johnson. The president of the American league was no more scathing in his remarks, for instance that the president of the Pittsburgh Nationals, and some of the American leaguers are awakening and wondering why fish should be made of one man and fowl of another.

The anti-Johnson agitation had been planned so carefully that he was not aware of it himself, and his own league was caught flatfooted. Johnson is returning to Chicago after having listened to all the comment that has been made, and realizing pretty fully the opposition against him which is centered in his own city—for it was in Chicago that the plan was worked out to put him on the defensive before he had time to realize what was coming.

The National league has been fighting for some years to free itself from the incubus of being a subordinate, as it has been called by some critics.

There is no attempt made by the National people to hide their pleasure over the present situation in the American, and the latter, for once in its existence, seems to find itself confronted with a barrier of a type it has never faced before.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

Washington's official wheels turned the same as ever yesterday, but between turns both official and unofficial circles on the banks of the Potomac remembered two good sports. As the special train carrying the remains of Samuel Gompers rolled noiselessly into Union station, a little group gathered before the dias behind which Woodrow Wilson stood when he spoke the words that sent millions of America's young blood to France.

That little group numbered, among others, President Coolidge, ex-President Taft, now chief justice of the United States Supreme court; members of the Senate, House and diplomatic corps. They came to listen to a living scholar eulogize a dead scholar, statesman, diplomat and good sport—Woodrow Wilson.

Not far away, in the building where the destinies of the American laborer are decided, friends and associates were preparing to receive the remains of Samuel Gompers.

Back around 1913, when President Taft was packing his possessions at the White House, to make room for President-Elect Woodrow Wilson, Ye Ed was a cub reporter in the Capitol City.

A cigar store at the corner of New York avenue and Fourteenth street was the popular smoke-trading station for official Washington. Around 9 o'clock each morning, if anyone was curious enough to wait at this corner, they could see Uncle Joe Cannon and Sam Gompers, among others, slip in to get their day's supply of smokes.

Joe and Sam arrived about the same time, Joe with the inevitable cigar shooting at a 45-degree angle to the plane of his face. Sam would see Joe through the thick lens of his glasses, and the informal "Howdy-do, Joe," and "Howdy-do, Sam," would pop.

If you can make a hit with a cigar clerk, you're pretty sure to be a pretty good fellow. Joe and Sam did with Bill O'Brien and Billy Dempsey—the two clerks at this corner store. Bill and Billy had the distinction of waiting on some of the biggest men in our national affairs at that time. And they will tell you that Sam Gompers was the "salt of the earth."

Probably two greater diplomats never lived than Sam Gompers and Woodrow Wilson. You can't be a good diplomat unless you are a good sport. A diplomat, like a good sport is a good loser. Gompers and Wilson were both.

What would have been losses to some were victories for Gompers and Wilson. It would take a statistician to compute the labor battles lost by Gompers before he won the one big battle — placing the laboring man on a par with his employer.

And the same expert would be required to set forth the battles lost by Wilson before his one big battle of "preparedness first" was won. Wilson was jumps ahead of his contemporaries. When he won that battle, the world trembled with the tread of American feet in France. He was ready.

Wilson lost his League of Nations battle. He died fighting for its principles. Now leading nations are advocating a World Court, another name for a League of Nations.

Gompers was a Dutch Jew; Wilson a Scotch Irishman. Both rose from obscurity to international fame by being good sports. Both fought their own battles—single-handed. Wilson died in exile in his S street home in Washington. Gompers just escaped dying in Mexico, where he had gone to witness Calles' inauguration.

As friends and foes waited to take a last look at the remains of the greatest labor chief the world ever has known, friends and foes gathered to hear an "In memoriam" of the greatest war chief the world ever has known. And both were good sports.

PICK OFFICERS FOR LEGION AUXILIARY

Mrs. E. Gilliland Re-elected President; Make Plans For Christmas

Mrs. E. W. Gilliland was re-elected president of the auxiliary unit to Glendale post No. 127, American Legion, at the annual meeting held last night at the home of Mrs. H. C. Smith, 1027 Florence place.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Nellie S. Hyer, first vice-president; Mrs. L. T. Rowley, second vice-president; Mrs. James F. McBryde, secretary; Mrs. George L. Kaeding, treasurer; Mrs. Virgil Burris, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Charles Nagle, musician.

The executive board members are: Mrs. G. H. Rowe, Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, Mrs. W. B. Kelly, Mrs. G. Edwin Murphy, Mrs. H. C. Smith. Delegates elected to the county council were: Mrs. E. W. Gilliland, Mrs. Nellie S. Hyer and Mrs. George L. Kaeding, with Mrs. Virgil Burris, Mrs. James F. McBryde and Mrs. Charles Nagle as alternates.

Plan Christmas Cheer

Plans for Christmas cheer for former soldiers at Sawtelle in cooperation with twenty-five other Glendale organizations were made at the meeting. Glendale auxiliary will co-operate with other auxiliaries in the county in preparing for the dinner which will be served in Los Angeles beginning at 11 o'clock on Christmas day and continuing throughout the day.

Several thousand former service men will be served. The Biltmore hotel has agreed to mash the potatoes and cook the turkeys for the dinner and a number of other organizations in Los Angeles have signified their intentions of assisting. It was reported at the meeting that Sid Grauman had arranged for attractions at his Los Angeles theatres to be free to the former service men.

The auxiliary also voted to assist the local post in arranging for a float in the parade at Pasadena on New Year's day. No action was taken on the Girl Scout plan but it will probably be taken up at the next meeting. A committee from the auxiliary will meet Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. George L. Kaeding, Salem street and Central avenue, to pack boxes for families of needy former service men in Glendale.

Christmas Program

The meeting last night was also in the form of a Christmas party, each member having been requested to come prepared to contribute to the program with some Christmas thought. Mrs. Evelyn G. Pierce, who was a guest at the meeting, entertained with two readings, one being in a humorous trend and the other a Christmas reading.

Mrs. G. Edwin Murphy, of the Emerson School of Self Expression, gave readings and Mrs. George L. Kaeding sang "Ave Maria." Mrs. Nellie S. Hyer gave two humorous southern Christmas readings. Mrs. Drake entertained the members by telling her personal experience of her first California Christmas.

Refreshments of cake and coffee were served at the close of the program by the hostess assisted by her sister, Mrs. Margaret LaBrum. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. G. H. Rowe, 216 South Orange street, January 5.

OIL MAGNATES STAND FOR WEALTH

Representatives Gathered In Texas Described By Writer

By ROBERT T. SMALL

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 16. —Seated within a small room at dinner Wednesday night in this Texas town about one-fortieth the size of New York city was gathered greater wealth than any single meeting the metropolis of the country has ever known.

There were all the ramifications of the Standard Oil company. There were Walter Seagle, head of the Standard of New Jersey; Bob Stewart, of the Standard of Indiana; Herbert Pratt, of "Socony," the Standard of New York; K. R. Kingsbury, of the Standard of California, to say nothing of the presidents of a dozen or so of subsidiary companies.

Harry F. Sinclair, of Tea Pot Dome fame; John C. Donnell, veteran of the wells, one time associate of John D. Rockefeller, now the head of the Ohio Oil Company; Henry L. Doherty, head of the board and Chas. E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York; three of the famous Phillips Brothers of Oklahoma—Waite, Frank and L. E.—Judge Amos L. Beaty, president of the Texas company; Ernie Marland, of the Marland Company, who has such a terrible time trying to keep the papers from calling his outfit the "Maryland" company.

These were a few of those who forgot business for a little bit of playtime and it was plain to be seen that Wall street and all its woes had for once taken a back seat.

Old Oaken Bucket

There were songs of the "Old Oaken Bucket" and "When You and I Were Young, Maggie" with just a dash or two of "Sweet Adeline" to give a flavor of barbershop harmony. It is remarkable how human these big men of finance and oil seem on close acquaintance. They may sit in embattled towers and minarets in New York and frown upon all who seek an audience but out here where the west begins they are different. And what a wealth of personality as well as dollars they represent. The personality is all the more keenly emphasized here because many of the men who have gone to New York to help make it famous "tie up" with the west; tie up with Texas itself.

Take for instance, Mr. Swenson, head of the National City Bank. He is Texan to the core. His father was a partner and crony of Sam Houston. The Swansons bought a young commonwealth of their own out here when land was selling at about ten cents an acre. Several cities and towns rest today on what was once their territory. Mr. Swenson and his brother still maintain a cattle ranch of something like 400,000 acres. E. P. Swenson, man of the plains, is directing genius of the world's greatest bank and in his dinner jacket the unobservant would write him down as a "typical New York club man."

True Representatives

Then there is Judge Beaty of the Texas company. He, too, has gone from the plains to Broadway, but he insists that once a Texan always a Texan. Like several other big oil executives he rose to the top through the legal department. It would seem that lawyers have no bounds.

Colonel Bob Stewart, chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, is another example of the lawyer who has passed the practical oil men for executive honors. Colonel Bob was a rough rider under Teddy Roosevelt. He is an Iowa idea which found its expression in South Dakota before being called to the Standard. One ordinarily thinks of "chairman of the board" as a sort of emeritus person, but Col. Bob is anything but that. He is a youngster of about 47, weighing 250 pounds and looking fit enough to lick his weight in wild cats.

"Uncle John" Donnell, of the Ohio Company, is dean of all the oil magnates. He admits to being just beyond sixty, but they say he started with the Standard some fifty years ago and is the only man living entitled to call the Rockefeller "John" right to his face.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—E. D. Bryant was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Neighbors following an investigation of the theft of $67,500 in oil, asserted to be the property of the Standard Oil Co. in the Long Beach field. Bryant, it is asserted, appeared before the grand jury today and involved a score more in the alleged "get-rich-quick" scheme.

Detectives Davison, Brockley and Murphy of the Long Beach police force, will have to explain why Harvey Ashley, federal prisoner, was made speechless during their efforts to wring a confession from him when he was arrested for sending improper letters to a woman, according to Federal Judge Bledsoe, who is hearing the evidence.

When 7000 southland teachers answered roll for an institute here yesterday it was necessary to charter a dozen buildings for divisional meetings. Lecturers are being forced to repeat their speeches several times.

S. W. McNabb, former mayor of San Bernardino is said to be leading the field for the United States district attorneyship here to succeed Joseph C. Burke, resigned.

Storm warnings were posted along the Southern California seacoast today with heavy winds in prospect.

Motorists will note that no parking is permitted in the downtown area between 8 and 9:30 a. m. and 4 to 6 p. m. in order to clear the streets. Christmas shoppers are asked not to jaywalk in order to expedite matters.

City Prosecutor Friedlander is working on amendment to present laws making a serious offense of check passing where "insufficient funds" and "no accounts" are used to defraud merchants, it is reported.

Los Angeles street car employes yesterday received Christmas bonus checks amounting to more than $106,000, distributed among 2200 men.

CHICAGO WHEAT

By International News Service

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Grains were higher at the close today, although they had eased off from the high level reached in early trading. Wheat finished 1 3-8 to 2 1-4 up. Corn closed 5-8 to 7-8 higher. Oats closed 1 1-8 to 1 3-8 up. Wheat started strong and kept soaring until within the first hour new highs for the season had been registered in all futures. Provisions closed lower but active.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—In line with previous days of activity in almost every active stock on the list, including Worthington pump, the leader in yesterday's closing flare-up, many stocks jumped into the front and surpassed their best previous price records. Universal Pipe and Radiator common and preferred stocks attracted attention by their strength and activity, the common which recently moved up from 17 to 34, making a further advance to 38½; Colorado Fuel, Savage Arms, Davison Chemical and a score of well known stocks featured a heavy buying movement in which prices were advanced from 1 to 3 points.

The railroad stocks as a whole were not conspicuous through the spectacular gain of 20 points in Central Railroad of New Jersey and the steady rally of Reading, Lehigh valley, Great Northern preferred served to focus attention on the rails. Wabash preferred stock was in good demand, following announcement that Missouri, Kansas and Texas preferred stock had been placed on a 5 per cent dividend basis. Wabash is expected to be the next to join the dividend class.

American Woolen and American Sugar, two of the best known industrial stocks, responded to favorable developments in their respective industries. American Woolen gained about 2 points and is expected to receive a decided benefit from the acquisition of the plants of the National Sugar Refining company.

The action of the money market was quite satisfactory to the bulls in the stock market. After completing transactions aggregating $1,000,000,000, the banks were ready to pour their funds into the call loan market and rates ruled at 3 per cent. Cotton prices made the best showing in more than a week and grain markets were firmer.

Glendale Home Raided Nets Big Whisky Haul

The residence of Richard Pennell of 532 Commercial street was raided at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Captain W. A. and Lieutenant W. J. Royle of the Glendale police department, assisted by Sergeants C. P. Blake, F. O. Williams, F. J. Lipstreu, Motor Officer K. P. Butler and Patrolman W. M. Rogers. Sixteen gallons of whisky and a half gallon of wine were confiscated.

Pennell was arrested on a "John Doe" warrant and brought to headquarters, where he was released after furnishing $500 cash bail to guarantee his appearance before Judge Frank H. Lowe of the Glendale police court today.

Charles Adams, occupying a small house at the rear of the same address, was arrested when caught trying to empty a bottle of whisky down the sink. He is being held at police headquarters under $1000 cash bail, which he has been unable to raise.

Field Artillery Now Carried by Holdup Men

K. Kester of 119 North Kenwood street and E. McCory, 604-A East Broadway, were held up at 7:30 o'clock last night, on Howard street between California and Wilson avenues. Kester was relieved of a gold watch, some small change and personal papers. Nothing was taken from McCory. Kester reported to the police, describing the man as of medium height, wearing a dark coat, dark cap and light corduroy pants.

"He talked like a negro," Kester said, "and carried a gun that looked like a piece of field artillery."

Police were unable to locate anyone answering that description.

STOP SIGNALS ON WOMEN'S GLOVES

Fair Sex Now Sporting Radium Warning To Male Mashers

By AILEEN LAMONT
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Nowadays women strive to dress in two ways, like people with a past or persons with prosperous parents. A convincing demonstration of either style is supposed to assure attraction. Attraction is merely another word for affectation. The merely married matron is no exception to the rule but in her case, if the crowds follow too close, she can always wear a pair of the new automobile gloves which gives unmistakable stop signals.

The gloves have a small circle of faceted red crystal set on the inside of the wrist with a radium dial behind them. When driving an automobile, it is only necessary to drop the hand, palm backward from the driver's seat, to warn followers to caution. Pedestrians have not yet been fully apprised of its significance, but then, New York is full of jaywalkers and mashers are even more firmly and gently repressed.

Many well dressed women shortly will be upon the sea, either on their way to Havana, Nassau, Florida or Europe, so to conform to international custom and usage, the right hand glove should have a green light. With such equipment, it is perfectly possible for the modern woman meeting a traveling acquaintance to signal "I am crossing your bows, with a husband in tow." There is no signal, however, for double crossing.

Stop Signals

The "stop" signals of the wrists, however, may be countermanded by the "go" signals of the ankles. Mistinguette, she of the million dollar legs, has established firmly the fashion of wearing flashing jewels on the ankles. The bracelets which clasp those high priced legs are not detachable. They are of diamonds or rhinestones on a flexible mounting which is woven into the mesh of the thinnest kind of a silk stocking, a 44 mesh in texture and which provides a background of shades known as hoggar, cordovan, bacchus and abesse. There are variations of biege tempered with mauve and the deeper Moorish browns.

Some of the younger misses have had their heads turned in the last month, but they have been turned in the direction of the poke bonnet. This is not a slow poke. But only a woman with a pretty profile can wear one attractively. The rather broad brim, some four inches in width, surrounds the face giving an appropriate background for natural coloring, whether blonde or brunette.

There is one essential difference between the hats popular here and those of Paris design. The former has a short brim in the back, turned sharply upward to avoid contact with the high fur collars which are such indispensible features of the winter coats. The latter comes down well below the hair line of the shingle bob like a roman helmet.

One warning about hats should be given however. After December 15, a woman in a velvet hat will be as much out of it as the male wearer of a straw headpiece at Coney Island's Mardi Gras in October. Satin, my dear, is the thing until such time as the cognoscenti go south in January, after that, the straw braids and horsehair, so absent from the summer, will begin to make their appearance.

Wild Palma Used Now To Make Golf Sticks

SEATTLE, Dec. 16.—Sporting goods manufacturers on the Pacific coast are now experimenting with a wood known as palma brava, or wild palma, which is grown in the Philippines, as a substitute for hickory in the manufacture of golf club shafts.

Third Meet Is. Called By Sycamore Residents

Another meeting of property owners included in the Sycamore canyon drive assessment district, the third to be held since the owners, under the banner of the Southeast Glendale Improvement association undertook to oppose the assessment as proposed by the city, will take place at the Glendale avenue Intermediate school, corner of Glendale and Park avenues, tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock. The special assessment committee, headed by R. Belcher, will report on activities since the session Saturday night, when it was empowered to retain an attorney as the first step toward legal action against the city.

President James C. Leitch, of the association requested today that every property owner in the district ascertain the exact amount of his assessment at the city hall and come to the meeting tomorrow prepared to report on the amount and the location and extent of his property.

Nine New Members to Be Initiated as Elks

Balloting on nine new members who will be included in the class of candidates initiated next Monday night, took place at the regular meeting of Glendale Elks lodge last night. Plans for the reception of Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler Horace H. Quimby of Alhambra, who will pay his official visit to Glendale lodge at the time of the initiation, were also made at last night's meeting. Beside a large class of Glendalians, a class of thirty candidates from the newly organized Burbank lodge will be given the degree work.

Campaign to Ratify Child Labor Laws

LOS ANGELES Dec. 16.—A campaign to place California among the thirty-six states necessary to ratify the federal child labor law as the twentieth amendment of the constitution of the United States, was launched in Southern California today with a series of meetings. Miss Helen Todd, New York welfare worker, addressed the gatherings.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP by FAIR PLAY

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Jack Dempsey has started training out on the west coast. This fact became known today. He excited no suspicion when he left here until it became known that Jerry the Greek, his trainer, went with him. Then came word he was getting down to business.

Jack's actions—now that his vaudeville tour is over and he has no reason to excite the public—would look as though he does expect to get a good guarantee offer from Tex Rickard to go against Gibbons.

Even with training, Tommy will catch the champion just the way he caught him at Shelby—without the benefit of a good fight under his belt in preparation.

The reason Dempsey did not punish Gibbons more in Montana was because through his lack of real experience his eye was not good. When he lashed out with all his power for the body his poor aim was shown by two or more low blows that the referee could easily have called foul.

What Old Nick would have been raised had Gibbons been enough of a hound to have dropped pretending he had been disabled by one of Jack's low blows. There would have been shooting sure if Jimmy Dougherty had been willing to take Dempsey's title away from him.

Dempsey is older and there is no telling how poor he may be in him timing when he meets an elusive target like Gibbons. It does not stand to reason that Tommy can hurt Jack but he might make a great showing so far as points are concerned.

SCOUTS SET FOR THREE-DAY HIKE

Glendale Troop Will Leave Tomorrow Morning for Arroyo Seco

Unless rain prevents, forty Glendale Boy Scouts will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning for a mountain hike and outing. Frank C. Ayars has provided transportation. The Scouts will motor to the foot of the mountains at the mouth of the Arroyo Seco. From there they will hike to Switzer's camp to stay over night. The next day they will hike to Opid's camp and stay that night. In the morning the hike will be continued over Mt. Wilson and back to Sierra Madre, where machines will be waiting. Harvey R. Cheesman, Scout executive, will provide beds for the boys at both canyons.

Scoutmasters held a conference last night in the gymnasium at Harvard High school. Mr. Cheesman directed new games, and Major C. L. Wyman conducted a drill and flag ceremony. The next overnight camp will be held Friday, December 26, in the Los Angeles river bottom.
